OPINION AND COMMENT

Laying the Cornerstone

With impressive ceremonies performed by the Grand Lodge of Masons of North Carolina and calling to mind similar ceremonies of the far-off year 1793 in which William R. Davie and his far-visioned compatriots participated, the University, at noon on October 12, laid the cornerstone of the first of the four new dormitories provided by the legislature in February, and committed itself through Dr. Chase, its present head, to the task of adding to the handiwork of Davie and Caldwell and Swain and Battle and Winston and Alderman and Venable and Graham.

THE REVIEW attempts no expression of the significance of the event. On the contrary, and in view of the countless benefits which Alma Mater has conferred upon the commonwealth and nation since Hinton James first entered here, it leaves it to the imagination of the alumnus or citizen to picture forth the far-flung future of achievement and solid good to the sons of men which must inevitably flow from the new and ever greater University.

The Educational Genius of North Carolina

Professor W. S. Bernard, in his address to the Mecklenburg County alumni on University day, presented a theme that should be passed on to the entire alumni body—that intangible, indefinable something or spirit of the University which calls hundreds of penniless boys to the campus to labor and to sacrifice that they may become a part of it.

That he succeeded in putting the idea over, as well as effectively reciting the fact that boys who registered at the opening of the University had to swing picks with the construction group before they could finance their first meal in Chapel Hill, is fully attested in the editorial note appearing in the Charlotte News the day following the celebration.

Entitled The Educational Genius of North Carolina the note follows, and should call forth assistance on the part of local associations of any student or would-be student whose presence at the University is jeopardized by lack of funds.

The recitation of facts as to the number of students at the University who are suffering all manner of hardships to the end that they may get an adequate scholastic training, that approximately half of the 1,500 boys now on the Hill are helping themselves to an education, let us see clearly into the genius of North Carolina. Professor Bernard's brilliant exposition of University life to the alumni of this community Tuesday night ought to serve as an inspiration to those who are trying to make the educational opportunities of the State in some way commensurate with the educational aspirations of our young manhood and womanhood.

Any state that can send half of its entire enrollment at the State University there without funds to carry them through, send them there with nothing but a determination to get an education and with a willingness to do any sort of menial or manual labor in order to pay their expenses, is a State that will be heard from in the future. This incident shows anew the stuff of which Carolinians are made; it shows the depth and breadth of the educational interest in this commonwealth; it shows, furthermore, that the State can not afford to hold back so long as there stirs in the souls of its young men and maidens such ideals and aspirations as drive them into such sacrifices for the sake of possessing themselves with thorough equipment for life's work.

Mecklenburg Set a Good Pace

The celebration of University Day by alumni from Chapel Hill to Shanghai was of the sort to cheer the heart of Alma Mater, and was indicative of a group consciousness which every year becomes more cohesive and efficient in the achievement of University purposes.

An example of the best sort of local celebration was that held in Charlotte by the Mecklenburg Association. First of all, it was short and snappy. No one was tired to death when the performance was over. Next, it gave the principal speaker, Professor Bernard, a chance to get his speech across, with newspaper men in attendance, and the next day arranged to have him speak before the Kiwanis Club of Charlotte. And finally, it passed a resolution asking the University authorities to reopen the question of providing a full four-year medical course to relieve what, to the medical profession's mind, is a serious need in North Carolina today. In other words, it brought to the attention of the University a field of service of the need of which it has first-hand information.

Action Is Wanted

On February 28 the General Assembly passed the $1,490,000 building program of the University and served notice on the building authorities that it would require of their hands an accomplishment, which, when tested as the masons test the newly laid cornerstone with square and level and plumb line, must be true and tried and worthy of acceptance.

On October 12, seven months afterwards, the cornerstone of the first real University building was laid.

In the meantime, the long fine summer has passed, the new faculty houses are just beginning to shelter their occupants a month later than schedule, and the Southern Railway freight engine, which was to be hitched at night occasionally somewhere back of the Power Plant has never even so much as laid eyes on his future hitching quarters.

THE REVIEW realizes that to get a big program underway requires lots of time, that there must necessarily be some backing and filling on the part of all concerned, but the time has come—in fact it has passed—when some finished work must be shown.

Action, gentlemen, fierce, purposeful action, like that which drove the big concrete road mixer up the Chapel Hill-Durham pike at the rate of four hundred feet a day, is wanted and must be had.

An Alumni Opportunity

THE REVIEW has just read, with keen interest, the offering which the Extension Division of the University makes to the people of the State. The special publication containing this information is entitled "University Extension Service," being Volume 1, No. 1, of the Extension Bulletin, and describes in detail all the work in which the Extension Division is engaged.

To the new officers of alumni associations, and to alumni everywhere, we commend this publication, and suggest that you secure for the University the opportunity of serving the local community in some of the ways indicated in the publication. You have, gentlemen, the opportunity of putting the University in direct touch with your community, and it is sincerely to be hoped that you will utilize it. Write for a copy of the Bulletin and get busy.

Two Important Educational Proposals

Two recent meetings of unusual interest to alumni were those of the presidents (with one additional representative from each college) of North Carolina colleges, held at Greensboro October 8, known as the North Carolina College Conference, and of the University faculty, held on October 18 and attended by Reverend Charles E. Maddry, '03, Secretary of the North Carolina Baptist State Convention.

At the Greensboro meeting, in which problems of college administration such as entrance requirements, certificates, standardization of courses, received consideration, the topic of scholarships came in for particular discussion. Two propositions were presented by some of the privately supported institutions; namely, that all scholarships should be based on invested funds, and that if the State grants free scholarships, it should not assign them to students in State institutions, but should allow the holder to utilize them at any institution he might desire.

The discussion, as might easily be inferred, hinged upon the present practice of the State-supported institutions granting free scholarships to those who agree to teach or go into agricultural work—a practice to which some of the privately supported colleges objected and asked that the method suggested above be substituted for it.

State Aid Implies State Control

This point of discussion was later referred to a committee of the conference and the matter is now under advisement to be reported on at a later meeting.

In the opinion of THE REVIEW, there is but one proper way to dispose of the matter; namely, that wherever State aid is given State control should follow as it does at the present time.

Free Tuition for State-supported Schools

In view of the fact that the question of tuition at State-supported colleges has been raised, THE REVIEW would point out the fact that North Carolina, South Carolina, and possibly Maine, are the only states in the union that charge residents tuition for instruction at their various state-supported institutions of higher learning. If any phase of the question is to be considered, this certainly should be the one, and that at the earliest moment possible. To THE REVIEW's way of thinking, the time has passed in America when it should be necessary for resident students who desire to pursue undergraduate courses in state-supported schools to pay a tuition charge. The practical difficulty in the way of this change in North Carolina is that to make it at the session of the next legislature would necessitate an appropriation sufficient to cover the amount now received in tuition charges—a change that could be made without placing an undue burden upon the revenue of the State and one which would insure a fully State-supported program of higher education.

Chairs of Biblical Literature

The second proposal, which was presented by Mr. Maddry, was that such churches as desired it be permitted to establish chairs of biblical literature at their churches in Chapel Hill, the courses to be conducted by representatives nominated and supported by the respective churches, and confirmed by the faculty, and to be credited by the University upon completion by the student. The courses are to be non-sectarian in nature and the educational qualifications of the church representatives conducting them are to be passed upon by a special faculty committee.

The plan which Mr. Maddry submitted is one that is now in effective operation at the University of Texas and a half dozen other central and western universities. Recitation rooms are provided in the large institutional churches such as are now being projected by several of the churches in Chapel Hill and a small amount of credit is allowed by the institutions for the courses satisfactorily completed, the occupant of the chair being, usually, someone other than the local pastor of the church.

The proposal, novel to eastern institutions in that it suggests a way by which religious but non-sectarian instruction may be provided for students at state-supported institutions, is a most interesting one, and has been referred to a newly formed committee of the faculty upon educational policy for study and report.

Appoint or Elect? Which?

Attention of the alumni is directed to that section of the proposed constitution appearing in the October issue which provides for the annual appointment of the entire board of directors of the General Alumni Association by the newly elected president, rather than their election by ballot for a term of years.

In the opinion of the editor of THE REVIEW this procedure is not in keeping with the best practice in the management of alumni offices as it calls for too frequent and too radical change in the directorate of an office whose effectiveness in the very nature of things depends upon the permanency of secretarial and directorial policies.

The principle of the short ballot may be and is highly desirable in some instances; but in this, where an office is to be administered through a group of alumni whose forte has certainly not been alumni administration or even wide acquaintance with its underlying principles, it would seem the wiser policy for all members of the first directorate to be elected for a term of one, two, and three years, their successors to be chosen in a similar way for three years upon the expiration of the first term of service.

As the proposed constitution is now submitted to the alumni for suggestions, the editor makes this one in the interest of a more efficient, because a more experienced, working organization.

Chapel Hill-Durham Boulevard

Is it hard enough?

Are you talking about the surface of the Chapel Hill-Durham Boulevard, fellow alumnus? We'll say it is, except in two spots—hard and smooth and just the sort to tempt you to run right into the speed cop's open arms.

Elliott and Shoals are still at work on the bridges over the two creeks near Chapel Hill, but if they are not completed—the indications are that they will be—the short detours now in use will take you over; and from one end of the twelve-mile strip to the other is the invitation to take in the big show on Emerson field Thursday, November 24, at 2:30 P.M.

Virginia Game Program

For the convenience of alumni a full page of information concerning methods of getting tickets, places to get lunch, parking space, and other particulars of the Virginia game is given elsewhere in this issue. Inasmuch as a record crowd is to be present, the wise thing to do is to arrange for tickets at once. Last moment special deliveries and telegrams may be effective, but on the other hand they may not. And special calls on friends to buy in advance for you may find their bank accounts sadly overdrawn. So write your check and get it started early.

Again, we say, start now if you plan to see the big show!

If We Were Bolshevistic

If THE REVIEW were bolshevistic and not thoroughly occupied with its own immediate affairs, it doubtless would tell the boys, big and little, how to run the whole shop. Under such circumstances it can imagine itself advising:

Those in charge of the building program, to put something on the top of that cornerstone the masons laid for that purpose.

The members of the faculty who do not read a North Carolina newspaper, to subscribe for one so that they may better understand the "apperceptive mass" of the student to whom they happen to be revealing new truth.

The football coaching staff, to develop some one play with the necessary punch in it to insure a gain of one yard when one yard is absolutely needed, even if it is against that immovable body that has always worsted the hypothetically irresistible force.

The instructor who meets a section of the freshman class for the first time, to print his name (even though it may have appeared in Who's Who in America so these many years) on the blackboard in big clear letters. The freshmen may not know you.

The man at the power plant who watches the thermometer (if he has one) controlling the temperature of the water flowing through the radiators, not to keep his eye so close on the coal pile that he cannot note the numbness of mind and fingers of the increasingly large force of office workers in the University due to their frozen physical estate.

Frankly, if we enjoyed full membership in the soviet, this would be our present irreducible minimum.

We Return to Chapel

With the redemption of Memorial Hall from an echoing mountain canyon to an auditorium whose acoustic properties are thoroughly satisfactory, has come the possibility of renewed chapel attendance on the part of the entire student body—a fact which the alumni, in view of the contribution to the unity of campus thought and ideals formerly made by chapel meetings, will heartily acclaim.

While campus thought, particularly that expressed by The Magazine, has not been favorable to the proposal, the permanent advantages to be derived by the institution far outweigh the temporary inconveniences and seeming abridgements of student liberties, and a well managed daily program should spell finer morale, not only on the campus today and tomorrow, but particularly in the ranks of alumni everywhere, five and fifty years from now.

Student Thought?

Every now and then the old grad asks "what are the students thinking about?" Unfortunately, THE REVIEW misses by a great deal getting "next" to the student body as it should like, but recently it has been checking up some of the campus publications and below is given a sample of the new heady editorial wine its contemporary, The Magazine, is pouring into the old or new (we know not which) bottles:

We used to think compulsory chapel for everybody was a good thing; we do not think so any more.

As for the gag that chapel will be the salvation of a larger Carolina, we don't see anything to it. Chapel is primarily for reading the Bible. We don't see how this will make for a united student body 20 years hence. What can a speech on the solar system or the square of minus sixty-seven or the star dust of Jupiter do towards making a united student body?

We have done and said a lot about our freedom at Chapel Hill. We have said that it grew men. Are we to throw these two heritages away on something that is wrong in principle, and if it were right, has nothing of utility about it.

* * * * *

We move that someone tell us why the professors sat on the rostrum at commencement last year. Who wants to see them? Nobody! What the admiring throng gathered here to see was the graduating class and not a bunch of professors who were trying to usurp the place of honor. Let them keep off the rostrum at the next commencement!

The Bell Ringer Yields to Science

Evidences that cannot be gainsaid in the form of attractive wall clocks have appeared in Alumni Building, the Library, and other buildings on the campus which foretell the doom of the official Ingersoll carried first by Horny Handed Henry, and since his passing by present bell ringer Comet Barbee. For a huge master electric clock, in Business Manager Woollen's office is now being connected with the bell tower and numerous clocks and gongs throughout the campus. Curfew—meaning the Old South Bell—shall not cease to ring, but the power which causes it to peal out the passing hours after these one hundred and twenty-eight years have taken their immortal flight will not be the elbow grease of Wilkes Caldwell, the annals of whose simple life were lovingly told by the late "Pres." Battle, or of the lamented faithful Henry Smith, upon whom the Class of 1909 conferred out of an abiding deeply-rooted affection the honorary degree of LLDD—Learned, Loyal Ding-Donger. Instead, an electric current, unseen, efficient, but wholly lacking the warmth and glow of genial personality, will hereafter sound the call from sleep to breakfast and to prayer.

All of which indicates in the words of the poet, Sic volvenda aetas commutat tempora serum. If this is too much for you try tempus fugit.

The Eligibility Situation

On another page THE REVIEW has set forth with care and in detail in an impartial news-story by a member of its staff the situation which prevailed at the beginning of the term concerning the eligibility of certain members of the football squad and the subsequent ruling of the athletic committee declaring them eligible.

THE REVIEW recognizes the difficulty, the almost baffling complexity of the situation, and has not been able to put its finger on the particular premise or premises which led to the conclusion reached; but it cannot escape the conviction that somewhere leads were followed which have resulted in a lowered athletic standard for the University; that somehow, in the highly complex tangle, the fineness of the spirit of Carolina athletics, which THE REVIEW, together with the campus and alumni, has increasingly cherished in recent years, has, unfortunately, suffered loss.

UNIVERSITY BEGINS 128TH YEAR

With approximately 1,600 students registered, 250 more than on the corresponding date of 1920, the University formally began its 128th year on Friday morning, October 4, at eleven o'clock. The place of meeting was Memorial Hall, and the invocation was offered by Reverend A. S. Lawrence, pastor of the local Episcopal church.

President Chase Speaks

Speaking on the theme Freedom and Responsibility, President Chase declared that the present year presented the student body with the most serious challenge it had ever been confronted with: the responsibility of utilizing the resources of the enlarged University in keeping with the spirit of freedom by which the campus is governed. The State, he asserted, had recognized its duty through the legislature, and it remained for the students, acting as free and responsible men, to meet the challenge fully.

Duty, not Rights, Should be Watchword

Speaking particularly of the rule of conduct of the student body, of the freedom which it would enjoy and the consequent responsibility which freedom entailed, President Chase said:

Now freedom is a word to conjure with. It has stirred men's pulses since human life began; the story of its gradual achievement runs like a golden thread through history. But through history, too, runs the tale, just as plain, just as significant, that freedom was never truly attained nor long maintained by any group of men among whom there did not exist a deep sense of individual responsibility. Out of the American Revolution a free country was born; but freedom in these United States was maintained just because that generation, and the generations who came after them, were made up of men who assumed the obligations of freedom, who met squarely the duties and obligations of free citizens. Out of the Russian Revolution the other day there emerged, not freedom, but tyranny—tyranny probably less conducive to human happiness than the autocracy it replaced. Why? Because there was in all Russia no dominating group of men who could set above their selfish interests, duty and obligation to all. There was no deep sense of responsibility; there was much talk of rights, there was little talk of duty.

Other speakers were Dean Bradshaw and Garland B. Porter, president of the student body and student council. Dean Bradshaw urged every student to strive for excellence in some particular field and President Porter explained the method by which the student council administered the honor system on the campus.

THE GRAND MARSHAL PLACING CONCRETE CAP OVER COPPER CONTAINER IN CORNERSTONE

CAROLINA CELEBRATES HER 128th BIRTHDAY

With the maples and poplars and hickories flaring as on October 12, 1793, when William R. Davie and the Grand Lodge of Masons laid the cornerstone of the Old East Building, the one hundred and twenty-eighth birthday of the University was fittingly celebrated Wednesday morning, October 12, the features of the ceremonies being an address by President Chase recounting the services of the University to the State and nation; the conferring of the honorary degree of LL.D. upon her venerable son, Major John W. Graham, '57, of Hillsboro; the laying of the cornerstone by the Grand Lodge of Masons of the first of the four new dormitories, thus marking the beginning of the new physical development of the greater University authorized by the recent General Assembly of the State; and the turning out in full force of the largest representation of faculty members, students, and visitors ever formed in a procession on the University campus.

A Permanent Influence for Good

President Chase in a speech of fine feeling and rare charm of expression, portrayed the spirit and service of the University in the long flight of years since its foundation, and declared his faith in its ever greater future. Recounting the changes in the history of the State and nation since its founding, and pointing out the part the University was yet to play in the affairs of men, President Chase said:

And yet, through all the vast remaking that the whole world was to see, the University that those men of vision founded here that October day has stood. It has seen empires rise and fall; it has outlived Napoleon and Bismark and their handiwork; it has seen the dawning of the age of steam and its slow decline before yet newer and mightier forces. It has seen great cities arise where there was only wilderness, seen those thirteen states become a nation of a hundred million, mighty among the mighty of the earth.

Here has the University stood and grown great; one of the permanent forces of this State and of this nation; enduring in the midst of change, steadfast in dark days, and in bright, a lasting inspiration for faith and loyalty and love. She has become one of those durable realities to which men cling amid a world of change; generations have lifted up their eyes to her as to the everlasting hills. Through her halls in endless procession have passed and shall pass thousands upon thousands, her sons; each of them here for a few bright years, then gone to his career. But round about them all has dwelt, and shall dwell, her immortal spirit, constant as men come and go, undying as the generations pass. In their ears has sounded, and shall sound, her unchanging challenge to the best that is in men's minds and souls, her summons to the God that is in man.

On this, our anniversary day, as we cherish in our hearts those clustered memories, we face a future that is bright with promise. They of the past have builded well. What we shall reap is but what they have sown. May we, and those who come after us, keep the faith they held; may we be granted something of the vision that upheld them. For the new era upon which we now enter calls for faith, and vision, and high purpose. It is an era which takes its point of departure from a declaration of faith on the part of this State of North Carolina; a declaration of faith in higher education and in this University. North Carolina has taken her stand squarely on the principle that a great modern commonwealth can insure its own future only when to every youth within its borders there is granted ample opportunity to develop himself to the full extent of his capacities. What she has done in recognition of this truth is today a challenge to the whole South; leadership in all this section is hers today; will be hers more firmly and fully as the passing years bring to fruition the seed that she has sown. Never did any state make a sounder investment in its own future, or was more certain of hundred-fold returns. She has but to cling, as she will cling, to this high faith in education, and the chapter she will write in her own life, and in the life of the whole South, will be great beyond any that has gone before.

To the faith which the State has shown in this, her University, deeds, not words, are the only real response. But I would say just this: It is our firm determination that, God helping us, we shall be worthy of this trust. It is to us a solemn responsibility, an obligation that we shall strive to meet even as the State has met its own. The greater University that shall arise here, whose cornerstone we lay today, will shelter men in numbers that they of the past scarce dreamed of, will count her sons by thousands, where hundreds have been before, will number her buildings by scores, her teachers by hundreds. All these things are sure. But the new University will be great, as the old has been, not because of these things. It will be great only if it calls to the minds and hearts of men only in the same clear tones, only if it shall always glimpse, beyond the physical and material, the spiritual reality which is beyond and above all. God grant that we may see, as Davie saw, and as those who have served this University throughout its glorious past have seen, that except the Lord will build the house, they labor in vain who build it; that we may build, as they, that which is permanent amid change, immortal amid passing generations, because, like them, we build on truth and righteousness and love.

Major Graham Honored

Speaking on behalf of the faculty, Dr. Archibald Henderson, '98, presented Major John W. Graham, member of the class of 1857 and trustee for many years, for the honorary degree of LL.D., the degree being conferred by President Chase:

As recommended by the faculty and ratified by the board of trustees, I have the honor to present to you at this time, John Washington Graham. Born in Hillsboro, this county, educated at the Caldwell Institute of his native town, in Georgetown, D. C., and at this University, he took the field at the outbreak of the War between the States, winning the rank of Major and bearing the wounds of gallant service. As able lawyer and wise legislator, he has left his impress upon the statutes of North Carolina—particularly in the fields of transportation, taxation, and finance. In a service of unprecedented duration and of unswerving devotion to his Alma Mater, this elder statesman of the old regime has won the affectionate gratitude of the younger generation of our own day. In recognition of such conspicuous and continuing service to the State's higher interests, this University will now confer upon him the degree of Doctor of Laws.

Necrology for the Year Read

The reading by Dean Howe of the list of the sons of the University who had died during the year and the singing of Integer Vitae by the University quartette, the audience standing, concluded the formal ceremonies in Memorial Hall from which the procession moved to the site of the new dormitories just east of the medical building for the laying of the cornerstone.

Masons Lay Cornerstone

Hon. Sam Gattis, Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Masons, read the ritual and directed the ceremonies incident to the laying of the cornerstone. Grand Treasurer B. R. Lacy deposited a copper box containing various publications of the University, and Francis D. Winston, also a Past Grand Master, exhibited the copper plate marking the cornerstone laid by Davie in the Old East Building in 1793.

The list read by Dean Howe follows:

Augustus Scales Merrimon Kenny, class of 1922, of Salisbury, died November 2.

Walter Thomas Gore, class of 1906, of Winchester, Va., died October 4.

Connie Cozette Barbee, class of 1910, of Durham, died October 6.

DR. COKER ON BUILDING COMMITTEE

Dr. W. C. Coker has been appointed faculty representative on the Trustee Building Committee. Dr. Coker has served for several years as director of the Arboretum and chairman of the faculty committee on buildings and grounds. During Dr. Coker's absence in Europe this summer, Dr. W. D. MacNider, of the faculty committee, served in his place.

SUMMER BALL AND ATHLETIC ELIGIBILITY

The wide discussion in University circles of three football eligibility cases that came up for settlement at the University this fall has focused the attention of students, faculty, and alumni on the definite question of eligibility in relation to summer ball. The three cases in question were the cases of Allen McGee, '23, Roy Morris, '23, and Fred Morris, '23, who played baseball on the New Bern team of the Eastern Carolina Association and who, as applicants for football eligibility, were held up by the athletic committee until their amateur standing was established.

In the process of this establishment there was revealed a misunderstanding of the instructions given the players last spring in regard to the very matter of summer ball in relation to eligibility. The athletic committee, in continuance of its general instructions, had purposed through their chairman in a special conference to urge the ball players emphatically against playing summer ball so as to avoid any question of their amateur standing. The players who were for the most part in the mind not to play summer ball at all received rather the emphasis of the instructions to be that they could play summer ball for expenses and get salaries for outside jobs provided the jobs were genuine and the pay was based on the actual work done and that furthermore the certification to these facts by the employer and employee was conclusive. This misunderstanding or, as Professor Bernard calls it by its Greek name, this antinomy, was largely in the opposition of emphasis intended and emphasis received.

The steps through which this misunderstanding developed were unfortunately unforeseen and yet in a sense inevitable after the first step. The constituents that made up the situation as developed were the athletic committee, the chairman of the athletic committee, the players, student opinion, alumni and citizen patrons of summer ball, and the whole matter of summer ball among college men in America. Each one of these factors entered into the making of our own situation with more or less responsibility. There have been varying dispositions to hold one or the other of these persons, groups, and factors as exclusively accountable for the present situation when the responsibility is altogether inclusive. Let us consider them in order.

First, the Athletic Committee

The names of the committee, Mangum, Chairman, Patterson, Howell, Hobbs, Lawson, Henderson, and Brown, who on previous occasions, have disqualified without hesitation indispensable football and baseball players, will satisfy all who know them that their ruling in the recent cases was not due to less scrupulous regard for amateur standards than that which has always characterized their decisions. The simple fact is that having committed themselves through their executive spokesman to a definite permission to definite men both to play on a definite team for expenses and to receive salaries for jobs other than playing baseball, the committee found itself in the position of being obliged to decide the cases in accord with the best evidence it could obtain as to the details of each individual job and the amount of salary received therefor.

One of the three players in question, Allan McGee, showed conclusively that he had as an automobile salesman more than justified the salary paid him for his work. The eligibility of the other two, F. and R. Morris, was not fully established at first. But later statements were received from fellow-employees that they and the Morris brothers received the same pay for the same work, and the employer of the Morris brothers also certified to this fact of equal work and proportionate pay. Because of the provisions for summer jobs agreed upon by the players and the chairman of the committee, and because of the certification of the players, fellow employees, employer, and other responsible and reputable citizens of New Bern, the committee declared the Morris brothers eligible. The committee makes no plea but simply stands on its decision in accordance with the evidence that the required provisions to which it was committed were fulfilled.

Second, the Chairman of the Athletic Committee

The chairman of the athletic committee was instructed by the committee to advise and warn the men against the entanglements of summer baseball. In carrying out his instructions he intended to place most emphasis on the dangers of playing summer ball; but he actually did place most emphasis, in the minds of the players, upon the details of how they might play summer baseball and yet preserve their amateur standing—upon the question of jobs and salaries, whether enough work was done in return for money received, and the certification on honor to these facts.

The players, who had themselves for the most part practically decided not to play summer ball at all, now asked if they could accept the offer to play at New Bern for expenses and also receive salaries for outside jobs. The chairman told them that they could, provided that they and their employers certified as to the adequacy of work done for the pay received and that the work and pay were the same as the work and pay of other employees doing the same work at the same time. That the chairman may have said that these certifications of employers and employees were sufficient did not preclude his taking cognizance of any question raised as to the fact dealt with in the certificates. In case of such question he was in duty bound to go back of the certification and establish the facts by careful inquiry. The criticism of the chairman for taking such action is of course unreasonable. His correct intentions, outspoken candor, and sensitive spirit of honor shine out through the entire embroglio.

Looking back now, it is easy to see, and also as many have found it, easy to say, as he himself would doubtless say, that the chairman made a mistake when he told the players that they might play on the New Bern team under specified provisions, instead of telling them that they should not play on the New Bern team or any other team connection with which might bring into question their amateur standing.

JUDGE WINSTON AND PROF. NOBLE HELP LAY THE CORNERSTONE

Third, the Players

It is held by some that the players should not have seized upon the permission to play, and that, however genuine their outside jobs might be, they should not have played at all in a circuit identified in the public mind with organized commercial baseball.

But into a judgment as to their responsibility must enter the following facts: They are all bona fide students of good scholastic and campus standing who developed their athletic ability and won their way up to the varsity in the fold of the University itself and in accord with its system of probation and competition. They had declined to accept, before any approach was made to them from New Bern, summer baseball offers carrying higher salaries, because they were unwilling to lose the right to play on University teams. They did not consider going into distant states, according to a practice not unknown among college athletes, to play under assumed names. They favorably considered not playing summer ball at all. They went to New Bern with an open announcement and an authoritative permission.

Also it is the testimony of citizens of New Bern that the conduct and sportsmanship of the players were most exemplary and that, in that circuit of clubs composed largely of college players, the high tone and fine spirit of the New Bern team was a distinct contribution to the athletic life and ideals of East Carolina. This comports with their life lived for three and four years on the campus of the University.

With due recognition of all these facts, it is also a fact that a large body of students and alumni, both those who believe in and those who oppose the summer ball rule, are strongly of the opinion that the summer ball rule should either be abolished or strictly enforced—enforced not according to any commitments about jobs and salaries but according to a rigid rule against their accepting outside jobs of any character which they would not be holding were they not ball players.

It is no doubt true that in many cases the players earn from bona fide jobs every cent of the salaries paid. It is also true that in other cases there is a twilight zone between earning the salary as a bona fide employee and earning it as an employee whose work is acceptable because he is a skilful ball player on the home team. The ball player leaves the appraisal of the value of his work on the outside job to his employer. The employer certifies to the player that his work was a fair return for wages paid. The employee-player, on the basis of this certification, signs his name to the identical written certification. In this manner the amateur spirit is sometimes violated by technical provisions. Consequently there is a large body of student and alumni opinion that, instead of there being written provisions for salaried jobs as accompaniments of summer ball, there should be written provisions against salaried jobs as incidental accompaniments of summer ball.

Fourth, the Alumni and Local Citizens

The alumni and local citizens are responsible for arranging and providing the jobs which supply the salaries for summer baseball players. There has developed considerable sentiment against the whole job arrangement and it is to be hoped that these alumni have learned (and some of them have learned) their lesson and with a broader patriotism and a deeper college loyalty are now more concerned with the amateur standards of Alma Mater than with getting crack University players on their home team.

Fifth, the Amateur Situation in America

A fundamental and responsible factor has been the vagueness of the meaning of the term amateur. There is not a college in America of high athletic ideals that has not been in travail for this very matter of amateur sport. What is professionalism, what are expenses, where shall the line be drawn against organized ball, shall amateur play be limited to teams of the home town, what shall be the requirements about outside jobs, are all questions involving limitations not clearly defined.

A Personal Word

Mr. Editor, if I may be allowed a personal word at the conclusion of an attemptedly impersonal and impartial news-story, it is this: whatever the cause, however manifold and complex the causes, however unconscious the University is of deliberate wrong, whether it inheres in the committee's written provisions for jobs, or in the nature of the job arrangement, or in the individual interpretations of the work done, or in the uncertainty of the amateur ideal, or in all these things, the result is that the University suffers in her own mind from a situation against which in her conscious regulations and in her unconscious tendencies she has long set her face. Let us all, committee and players, faculty and students, alumni and citizens, all join the Southern Conference, in the letter and in the spirit with such a burning sense of our own athletic standards that no man or set of men will dare to bring them in question.

F. P. G., '09.

CAROLINA LOSES TO N. C. STATE

Not that Fancett picked up a fumbled ball and ran for a touchdown, thereby winning for the State College the second victory over the University in two years, but that Carolina was unable to score after getting twice within the enemy's five-yard line, is the saddest memory connected with the game in Raleigh October 20. The seven of State College was not so bitter a pill as the zero of Carolina. The first could justly be called a piece of bad luck, a fluke; but the second was an indication that the University team did not possess that essential deadly virtue known as the final punch.

All through the first half of the game Carolina was dominant. Lowe and Johnson executed forward passes brilliantly, and these two and Morris made handsome gains around the ends. It seemed that the most the State College could hope for was not to win a victory but only to stave off defeat.

A moment in the first part of the third quarter changed the whole aspect of the battle. Lowe, from near his own goal line, went around State's right end for a ten-yard gain, was tackled fiercely by Homewood, and dropped the ball. It rolled forward into Fancett's hands. He picked it up and ran for a touchdown. From the time he laid hand on it until he planted it over the line not a Carolina man got within fifteen yards of him. It was all over almost before the huge crowd knew what was happening. This was the only time State had the ball inside of Carolina's forty-yard line during the entire game.

During the rest of the second half it was a see-saw performance. Neither team got near the other's goal. Toward the last, Carolina, knowing that to take wide chances was the only possible way to score, attempted spectacular forward passes. Both passing and catching were done skilfully, but watchfulness and good tackling on the part of State kept the gains down to a few yards.

On one of the two occasions when Carolina was near her opponent's goal, a forward pass, Lowe to Johnson, was attempted on the fourth down. It was completed, but Johnson was thrown for no gain. The other time the ball was carried beyond State's five-yard line Lowe tried a goal from field, but the kick was blocked.

It is idle to deny that thus far the season has been disappointing. Carolina won from Wake Forest 21 to 0, lost to Yale 34 to 0, and then disagreeably surprised its supporters, who confidently expected a victory, by breaking even with South Carolina, 7-7. But there are more games to come. Unquestionably there is splendid material on the squad, and the spirit of the men could not be better. With the ground-gaining capacity the team has shown, and with its record of a stubborn defense, it has a good chance yet to be put down as a winner.

MANY ASSOCIATIONS HOLD MEETINGS

In commemoration of the 128th anniversary of the laying of the cornerstone of the Old East Building, alumni associations held meetings and banquets on October 12 in many localities in North Carolina and other states. The meetings this year were more numerous than ever before and a splendid spirit of loyalty to Alma Mater ran through all of them. THE REVIEW records herewith brief accounts of the meetings which were held:

Albemarle

The Stanly County Alumni Association was organized at a meeting held in Albemarle on October 12. W. L. Mann, '06, was elected president and H. C. Turner, '16, was elected secretary. A committee consisting of G. D. B. Reynolds, C. A. Reap and H. C. Turner was appointed to send greetings to the University. Another committee consisting of Dr. T. P. Nisbet, J. H. McIver, and Wade Denning was appointed to arrange for a banquet during the Christmas holidays. The new association will strive to unite closely Carolina's sons in Stanly County.

Asheville

Thirty or more loyal sons of Carolina held an enthusiastic banquet at the Battery Park Hotel, Asheville, on the evening of October 12. R. R. Williams, president of the Buncombe County Alumni Association presided, and in the course of the evening remarks were made by practically all of the alumni present. The Buncombe alumni take keen interest in all affairs pertaining to Alma Mater, and the county is represented by a large group of students in the University. Plans were made for another banquet during the Christmas holidays at which the students will also be present.

Boston

Says W. T. Polk, '17: "Twenty of the old Carolina men now living in Boston and Cambridge, known as the Harvard-Tech Alumni Association, informally got together in one of the dining rooms of the Parker House in Boston Tuesday evening, October 11. They celebrated the University's birthday, wished themselves back in Chapel Hill (still believed by all of us, I suspect, to be the best place in the world), and did a vast amount of speech-making." Those present were: J. T. Pugh, S. R. Carrington, E. V. Patterson, Dr. C. S. Venable, A. T. Castelleo, R. F. Crouse, H. B. Black, R. M. Ross, Jr., A. M. Coates, W. T. Polk, L. O. Gregory, C. T. Boyd, J. D. Shaw, Hervey Evans, L. G. Cooper, Frank Hooker, M. C. S. Noble, Jr., J. T. Krumpelmann, C. M. Hutchins, and L. N. Morgan. R. F. Crouse presided as toastmaster and highly entertaining talks were made by the alumni. Plans were laid for a more closely knit organization and for another dinner in the spring.

Charlotte

Featured by an address from Professor W. S. Bernard, of the University faculty, the Mecklenburg County Alumni Association held one of the most successful banquets in its history on the evening of October 12, at Charlotte. Rev. W. A. Jenkins presided as toastmaster and the speakers other than Mr. Bernard included Judge James S. Manning, of Raleigh; J. E. Swain, of Asheville; A. C. Kerley, of Morganton; Dr. W. H. Frazer, President of Queens College; W. T. Shore, Brent S. Drane, John A. McRae, Richard Young, and F. O. Clarkson. Professor Bernard paid tribute to the splendid work done by Charlotte organizations and patriotic bodies in the campaign of a year ago. He spoke particularly of the self-help students in the University, and pointed out that practically half of the students in the University are self-help students. Two hundred and fifty students applied for jobs in Swain Hall to earn their board when only fifty eight could be employed. He asked the co-operation of the alumni particularly at the present time in helping needy boys and girls to secure a higher education. A resolution presented by F. O. Clarkson was passed, expressing thanks to Governor Morrison for fostering and to the General Assembly for passing the appropriations made some few months ago. Another resolution presented by John A. McRae was adopted, favoring the establishment by the University of a four-year medical school. A committee was appointed to work on this proposition. Officers were elected: Dr. Otho B. Ross, '05, president; M. R. Dunnagan, '14, vice-president; Nathan Mobley, '20, secretary and treasurer. Three honorary members were elected: Dr. W. H. Frazer, Col. Wade H. Harris, and John R. Purser. The other honorary members of this association are W. C. Dowd, Sr., Archibald Graham, and J. Lenoir Chambers. The Mecklenburg County Alumni Association numbers 300 or more alumni.

Durham

Hearing an address by President H. W. Chase, and voting to establish a fund for aiding deserving Durham County boys to pay their way through the University, the Durham County Alumni Association held a banquet at the Y. M. C. A. in Durham on the evening of October 11. Dr. Foy Roberson, president, called the meeting to order and introduced Judge R. H. Sykes, who acted as toastmaster. Invocation was asked by Rev. M. T. Plyler. General Julian S. Carr was the first speaker. General Carr indulged in reminiscences and assured the alumni of his great love always for Alma Mater. Twelve diplomas from the University are in the Carr family. John Sprunt Hill, of the building committee, related in some detail the work of this committee as it proceeds with the task of practically doubling the physical plant of the University. Major L. P. McLendon made a strong plea for having the State's educational system conducted from a centralized agency located at the University. Senator Elmer Long, formerly of Graham, and Abbott Lloyd, recently returned from China, expressed their pleasure at being present. W. B. Umstead made an effective plea for assistance to the self-help students in the University. President Chase made an excellent talk to the alumni. He dealt with University problems from many angles, pointing out that the chief business of the University is the making of real men. He made an effective plea for maintaining the spirit of faith the State has in the University. Resolutions were passed, assuring President Chase of the undivided support of the Durham alumni, thanking Dr. Foy Roberson for the service he rendered the association as president, favoring the motion of R. O. Everett for a lighted boulevard from Durham to Chapel Hill, and establishing a self-help fund. Officers were elected: Judge R. H. Sykes, '99, president; J. L. Morehead '03, vice-president; C. M. Carr, '05, secretary; T. C. Worth, '02, treasurer.

Edenton

Chowan County's loyal group of Carolina alumni celebrated the birthday of Alma Mater on the evening of October 12 with an informal supper, served by the home economics department of the Edenton high school. Reminiscences of the old days on the Hill were recounted but chiefly the interest centered upon the new University and the increased part she is to play in the life of North Carolina. The Chowan County alumni have an abiding faith in the University of the future. F. P. Wood, '16, was elected president; R. D. Dixon, '10, was elected secretary; and J. H. Conger, '18, was elected treasurer.

Fayetteville

The Cumberland County Alumni Association held the most enjoyable and profitable banquet in its history on the evening of October 12 at the Myrtle Hill Tea Room, Fayetteville. J. Bayard Clark, presiding as toastmaster, allowed no dull moment to exist. The principal speaker of the evening, Prof. F. P. Graham, of the University faculty was introduced by R. W. Herring. Mr. Graham, says Secretary R. S. McNeill, "made a simple yet eloquent 'University talk' that went straight to the hearts of his hearers and stirred up therein a deeper and more devoted spirit of loyalty to their Alma Mater." Among the other speakers were Major D. C. Absher and Capt. S. C. Cratch, of Camp Bragg, and J. S. Manning, Jr., of Raleigh. The association approved the tentative constitution for the General Alumni Association as carried in the October number of the ALUMNI REVIEW and voted to award sweaters to the members of the local high school football team. Officers were elected: Geo. M. Rose, '67, honorary president for life; Claud W. Rankin, '07, president; T. D. Rose, '10, vice-president; R. S. McNeill, '09, secretary; J. Reid Crawford, '13, treasurer.

Florence

Alumni residing in the counties surrounding Florence, S. C., have formed the Pee Dee Alumni Association. This new organization was perfected at a banquet given to his fellow alumni on the evening of October 10 by F. L. Willeox, '92, of Florence. E. D. Sallenger, '02, of Florence, was elected president, and A. L. M. Wiggins, '13, of Hartsville, was elected secretary. Numbers of staunch Carolina men are included in this new association. Resolutions were passed at the banquet expressing the pride of the alumni in the progress that is being made by the University and predicting "for their Alma Mater a career of usefulness unsurpassed by that of any other university in this land of free institutions."

Greensboro

Featured by an address from Hon. Walter Murphy, '92, of Salisbury, champion many times over of the University cause in the past thirty years and veteran of many general assemblies, the Guilford County Alumni Association held its annual banquet at Park Place Church, Greensboro, on the evening of October 11. Mr. Murphy started with the constitutional provision in 1776 and in an interesting manner reviewed the whole history of the University with relation to State aid, down to the present time. H. B. Gunter presided, and new officers were elected: C. L. Weill, '07, president; O. C. Cox, '09, vice-president; McDaniel Lewis, '16, secretary and treasurer. The association voted to present to the high school library two volumes of Dr. Battle's "History of the University." The committee on higher education will continue to function, C. L. Weill, C. R. Wharton, Capus Waynick, H. B. Gunter and W. S. Dickson.

Hillsboro

J. Cheshire Webb, of the Hillsboro Alumni Association, which last year sent out a clarion call over the State in the campaign for adequate funds, writes: "Our Grand Old President, Major John W. Graham, was over at the Hill having the degree of Doctor of Laws conferred on him and then, too, numbers of our men as Masons were over there laying the cornerstone, so that it was impracticable to hold a formal meeting, but we met together on the streets and sent a telegram of greetings. I sometimes fear that we, your nearest neighbors, like the children of the light-house keeper are so close to your protecting walls that we may seem unconscious of the rays of your kindly light which quickens hope in the heart of the mountain lad of Cherokee and the widow's son of Currituck. But just let something happen to your stock of oil and you will find us working like blazes for a new supply. We are 100 per cent for U. N. C."

Lincolnton

No regular meeting of the Lincoln County Alumni Association was held on October 12 but a few of the alumni got together and commented on the growth and prospects of Alma Mater. A telegram of greetings was sent to President Chase. The regular meeting of the association will be held during the Christmas holidays. A. L. Quickel, '95, is president of the association and K. B. Nixon, '05, is secretary and treasurer. Six students from the Lincolnton high school are in the freshman class in the University.

New Orleans

Carolina alumni of New Orleans held a luncheon on October 12 at the Chess, Checkers and Whist Club. Under the leadership of Rev. A. R. Berkeley, '00, as toastmaster, the alumni present had a jolly time. Carolina's future of service to State and nation was spoke of in glowing terms and reminiscences were indulged in. M. P. McNeely writes: "We held up many familiar University figures for memorial inspection and passed on them all favorably. Rev. W. G. Harry, '13, is pastor of my church here. He is an enthusiastic Carolina man and is drawing the boys of this city together in reverence for old Carolina."

Oxford

The Granville County Alumni Association held its annual meeting on the evening of October 12 in the offices of the chamber of commerce at Oxford. J. W. Horner, president, presided over the meeting and brief talks were made by a number of the alumni. The old spirit that permeates campus life at the University was revived and all members pledged themselves to a hearty spirit of co-operation with Alma Mater. Officers were elected: A. W. Graham, Jr., '12, president; J. W. Hester, '08, vice-president; F. W. Hancock, Jr., '16, secretary and treasurer.

Raleigh

One hundred alumni attended the rousing banquet of the Wake County Alumni Association held at the Bland Hotel, Raleigh, on the evening of October 13. Hon. Josephus Daniels acted as toastmaster, and the principal address was delivered by Prof. F. P. Graham, of the University faculty. Mr. Graham brought from President Chase greetings to the alumni assembled and made a splendid talk in behalf of the constant support of the alumni to the institution, to the end of a greater University. Brief speeches were made by Rev. I. Harding Hughes, Associate Justice W. P. Stacy, Dr. Z. M. Caveness, Judge J. Crawford Biggs, Judge R. W. Winston, Dr. R. H. Lewis, and Hon. J. Bryan Grimes. Says the News and Observer: "Each recalled experiences of his college years and pledged anew his loyalty to the University." Officers were elected: Dr. Z. M. Caveness, '03, president; G. H. Andrews, '03, vice-president, and R. B. House, '16, secretary and treasurer. The Wake County Alumni Association is one of the largest and most active in the State.

Reidsville

Writes W. E. Price, '19: "Thirty enthusiastic alumni met in Reidsville on the evening of October 11. After a banquet, Toastmaster W. R. Dalton called the meeting to order and the program was undertaken. After discussion committees were appointed who should be responsible for securing funds for any Rockingham County boy at the University in need of funds. Plans were made for a banquet during the Christmas holidays. The constitution and by-laws of the association were read and approved. The chairman was named as a committee of one to express the heartiest congratulations of her Rockingham sons to Alma Mater at the end of her most glorious year and at the beginning of an even more glorious one. W. R. Dalton, '07, was re-elected president and L. H. Hodges, '20, was re-elected secretary."

Rockingham

The Richmond County Alumni Association held its meeting at Rockingham on the evening of October 8. The meeting was strictly for business purposes. A substantial loan was authorized for a local self-help student in the University. Plans were perfected for holding a banquet during the Christmas holidays with the students as honor guests. Greetings were extended the alumni of North Carolina State College and the alumnae of North Carolina College. T. C. Leak, '95, is president of the association; W. N. Everett, Jr., '11, is vice-president, and Isaac S. London, '06, is secretary-treasurer.

Rowland

The Rowland Alumni Association held its annual banquet at the Hotel Henry, Rowland, on the evening of October 11. Dr. J. McN. Smith, president, served as toastmaster and the speakers included E. L. Veasey, J. F. Sinclair, and W. E. Lynch. The Rowland alumni are always active in behalf of Alma Mater.

Statesville

The Iredell County Alumni Association held an enjoyable banquet at Gray's Cafe in Statesville on October 12. Rev. G. V. Tilley, president, presided, and talks were made by Dorman Thompson, Jno. G. Lewis, Jno. A. Scott, Jr., F. A. Sherrill, and Dr. S. W. Hoffman. L. W. McKesson, Phar. '03, was elected president; Jas. Anderson, '23, was elected secretary; and Dr. S. W. Hoffman, Phar. '04, was elected treasurer. These officers together with Dorman Thompson and Rev. G. V. Tilley compose the executive committee. Carolina spirit and traditions have many strong supporters in Iredell County.

Wadesboro

A reorganization meeting and banquet of the Anson County Alumni Association was held at Wadesboro on October 12 and the affair was a rousing success. W. K. Boggan presided as toastmaster and addresses were made by all present. Dr. W. L. McKinnon, '01, was elected president and B. Vance Henry, '12, was elected secretary. The association plans to further all Carolina interests in Anson County.

Washington

Alumni of Washington, D. C., spent a pleasant evening together on October 12 at the Cosmos Club. Three visiting alumni were present, C. W. Bries, of Oklahoma City, W. A. Darden and A. A. McKay, of Annapolis. Each alumnus gave a brief life story of himself and the alumni all voiced their joy at the splendid prospects which lie ahead of the University. The alumni plan in the future to hold meetings frequently, perhaps as often as once a month. Officers were elected: E. F. Hartley, '99, president; J. A. Gilmer, '93, vice-president; E. W. Turlington, '11, secretary and treasurer. The officers together with Dr. Geo. M. Rutin, Dr. R. O. E. Davis and Dr. Wade H. Atkinson, are members of the executive committee. Alumni present at the banquet other than those mentioned above were: Hon. Homer L. Lyon, R. T. Wyche, W. E. Hearn, G. L. Tabor, Major Jno. A. Parker, J. D. Eason, Jr., V. F. Williams, G. L. Davis, W. B. Bland, L. A. Moore, F. L. Hurley, R. W. Pulliam, and W. E. Wiles.

Wendell

The Wendell Alumni Association held its annual banquet on the evening of October 12 at the Hotel Morris, Wendell. There were present: F. E. Hester with Mrs. Hester, E. H. Moser with Mrs. Moser, L. R. Clark with Mrs. Clark, J. E. B. Davis, P. C. Brantley, W. H. Rhodes, W. R. Nowell, and Irvin Langley. All of the alumni made brief talks and the main themes were higher education, the University's needs, and methods for co-operation on the part of the Wendell alumni. J. E. B. Davis, '89, was re-elected president; E. H. Moser, '12, was elected vice-president; and F. E. Hester, '06, was re-elected secretary.

Wilmington

The New Hanover County Alumni Association held its annual meeting at the Y. M. C. A., in Wilmington, on October 12. In the absence from the city of C. C. Covington, president, Dr. J. G. Murphy presided, and the meeting was declared one of the best held in years. Major W. A. Graham suggested that the association sponsor this year a series of lectures in Wilmington by members of the University faculty. His suggestion was acted on favorably by the association and a committee was appointed to work out the details. Marsden Bellamy asked the co-operation of the alumni in the plan of the Rotary Club to bring the Carolina Playmakers to Wilmington in January. I. C. Wright asked the continuous hearty support of all the alumni to the securing of adequate funds for the proper development of the University in all lines. Emmett H. Bellamy, representative in the General Assembly, recounted the work of the Legislature in the appropriations made the early part of this year. J. C. Hobbs suggested that the association hold monthly meetings and this suggestion was adopted as the plan for the future. Other speakers included Louis Goodman, J. B. Hill, Dr. J. B. Cranmer and Dr. Julian Moore. Officers were elected: Dr. J. G. Murphy, '01, president; J. C. Hobbs, '01, vice-president; H. M. Solomon, '11, secretary and treasurer.

Winston-Salem

The Forsyth County Alumni Association at its meeting on October 12 elected Rev. Douglas Rights, '13, president for the ensuing year and H. G. Hudson, '16, secretary. Burton Craige, retiring president, presided, and important business was transacted as follows: it was voted to establish an annual scholarship of value sixty dollars to pay the tuition of some worthy student in the University; committees were appointed to co-operate with the University in the interest of athletics, music, dramatics and other activities; Dr. H. E. Rondthaler was asked to draft an expression of appreciation and esteem in commemoration of the life and services of the late loyal alumnus, Walter Thompson; plans were laid for a rousing banquet of alumni and students to be held during the Christmas holidays. The Forsyth group of alumni numbers 250.

MEMORIAL HALL TO BE USED AS AUDITORIUM

Work has recently been finished on Memorial Hall to change its acoustics in such a way as to make it serviceable the year round as an auditorium. To affect this much desired end it has been necessary to cut down the highly excessive sound reverberation from four and four-fifth seconds to the usual absorption period of one and one-fifth seconds.

In setting about the solution of the problem it has been necessary to substitute as far as possible sound absorbing materials for the marble tablets, hard finished ceilings, and extensive glass windows. This has been done by covering a large part of the ceiling between pilasters with hair felt one inch thick overlaid with burlap, by closing and overlaying the large openings in the top of the ceiling, and by covering the aisles and other large areas of the floor with cork carpet—a method which has been successfully employed in the Wake county court house and the Church of the Good Shepherd in Raleigh.

As soon as this program is completed the hall will be lighted and heated and used for chapel, and hereafter chapel attendance will be required of the three lower classes while seniors and members of the professional schools will be urged to attend.

Although the lighting and heating have not been completed as yet, the hall was used at the formal opening and on University Day with results altogether satisfactory. After forty years it has been fully redeemed and becomes usable in a thoroughly satisfactory way.

NEW CLASS ATHLETIC FIELD

Inasmuch as the present class athletic field has been taken as the site for the four new dormitories authorized, a new field is being prepared to the east of Emerson field. During the summer the trees have been cut and cleared away, and the new quarters are rapidly being put in readiness for use.

The appointment of Hon. A. W. McLean, of Lumberton and Washington, D. C., to serve as chairman in North Carolina for the Woodrow Wilson Foundation was recently announced by Franklin D. Roosevelt, of the national committee in charge of the popular fund for endowing an annual award in ex-President Wilson's name.

ALUMNI SEND GREETINGS TO ALMA MATER

The following messages from Carolina's sons and daughters scattered throughout America and other countries were received by President Chase on University Day:

The Washington Alumni Association, meeting tonight, sends Alma Mater cordial greetings and congratulations on the splendid progress of recent years and the unprecedented opportunity of the immediate future. We are confident that the Carolina spirit will meet the challenge of opportunity and press forward to new and greater achievements.—E. W. Turlington, Secretary, Washington, D. C.

Bertie County was represented at the founding; at the cornerstone laying; at the re-opening in 1875. It renews its love for Alma Mater and sends its largest representation of students to the present term.—Francis D. Winston, 1879, president, Windsor.

We join in best wishes and congratulations to our Alma Mater on this her birthday. Although a great distance away we are constantly mindful of her great development and influence. We are fervently praying that she will beat Virginia this year.—Jas. W. Morris, Jr., '12, W. Raleigh Petteway, '13, Rachel Summers, '13, Tampa, Fla.

With sentiments of patriotism and with appreciation of the high standard our University has set and the enlarged service to all the people rendered under your wise and forceful leadership, I wish for both length of days and continued prosperity.—A. W. Graham, New York City.

Congratulations and best wishes from Richmond County alumni. We are standing behind you in every movement for the enlargement and extension of our University and the education of all our people. Splendid meeting held last night.—Richmond County Alumni.

Carolina men at George Washington University send greetings to their Alma Mater on her birthday. May the magnitude of her past accomplishments be surpassed only by the achievements wrought in the new day now dawning for alumni and students.—Walter Wiles, Washington, D. C.

The Mecklenburg County Alumni Association sends love and best wishes to the University on her birthday and expresses confidence in the great State of North Carolina upon the laying of the cornerstone to-day.—W. A. Jenkins, president, M. R. Dunnagan, secretary, Charlotte.

The Dallas Club of U. N. C. alumni sends its affectionate greetings and best wishes to Alma Mater on her one hundred and twenty-eighth birthday.—Chas. C. Cobb, John M. Avery, Cameron B. Buxton, Wm. H. Duls, Ralph C. Spence, R. F. Williams, F. L. Eulless, Dallas, Texas.

I am thinking of Carolina and her birthday tomorrow just as when I was on the campus and took part in the celebration of that occasion. None of her sons is more anxious to be present than I am, especially when I am closer this year than usual. For the coming year the University has my very best wishes for all the big things she has undertaken.—Winnie McIlamery, Winthrop College, Rock Hill, S. C.

On this anniversary of the University my heart turns to dear old Chapel Hill and fills with genuine pride at the University's phenomenal growth and achievements and at the deep confidence inspired in the hearts of the people of the State.—Zebulon Judd, Auburn, Ala.

We a committee of the first Alumni Association of Stanly County send our hearty congratulations to our Alma Mater on this her 128th anniversary and wish with her other sons for a greater and better University for the Old North State.—G. D. B. Reynolds, C. A. Reap, H. C. Turner, Albemarle.

Loyalty, devotion and enthusiasm for continued and greater success for their Alma Mater fill the hearts of one hundred Gaston County alumni of the University. God bless our mother.—A. E. Woltz, president; W. P. Grier, acting secretary, Gastonia.

Chatham County alumni send greetings upon this one hundred and twenty eighth anniversary and pledge continued loyalty and support to the University.—Walter D. Siler, president; D. L. Bell, secretary, Pittsboro.

Thirty loyal alumni of Chowan County send greetings and good wishes to their Alma Mater. Though one hundred and twenty-eight years old may she continue to be fruitful and multiply.—Joe R. Nixon, secretary, Edenton.

The Harvard-Tech Alumni Association sends greetings to Alma Mater and congratulates her upon her achievements. We prophesy an even more glorious future.—Floyd Crouse, president; W. T. Polk, secretary, Cambridge, Mass.

The Buncombe County Alumni Association sends hearty greetings to Alma Mater. We will celebrate University Day with largely attended banquet tonight.—Buncombe County Alumni Association.

The alumni of New Orleans send greetings to Alma Mater on her one hundred and twenty eighth birthday. We are having a birthday party at the Chess Club.—Alfred R. Berkeley, M. P. McNeely, W. G. Harry, Committee.

The Iredell County Alumni Association sends affectionate greetings and hearty congratulations to its Alma Mater and best wishes for her continued prosperity.—G. V. Tilley, president; S. W. Hoffman, secretary, Statesville.

The alumni of Rowland held a banquet tonight celebrating the 128th anniversary. We send best wishes for the most successful year in the history of our Alma Mater.—Dr. Jas. McN. Smith, president; J. Frank Sinclair, secretary, Rowland.

Hearty congratulations with best wishes for greater spiritual and physical growth. I am always there in spirit.—Bobbie Wunsch, Monroe, La.

Roanoke Rapids alumni send affectionate greetings to Alma Mater. We are giving four scholarships this year.—C. A. Wyche, president; L. N. Taylor, secretary, Roanoke Rapids.

Sampson County alumni send greetings and best wishes to their Alma Mater today.—Chevis Kerr, Clinton.

Greetings to the new University. As she grows in size may she continue to grow in usefulness to our people.—Hillsboro Alumni Association.

The Alumni Association of Lenoir County sends greetings to Alma Mater on her birthday.—Eli J. Perry, president, Kinston.

Regret that I am detained here by pressing matters. Wish the University a great day.—J. Bryan Grimes, Raleigh.

The faculty and students send cordial greetings and best wishes to the University.—J. I. Foust, president N. C. College, Greensboro.

DeRossett, Cooper and Powell send hearty congratulations, and good wishes to the President and to the University.—Montevideo, Uruguay, S. A.

We send best wishes to our Alma Mater on this her birthday.—W. H. Butt and J. S. Babb, Puerto, Mexico.

Best wishes for the most successful year in the University's history.—J. W. Umstead, Jr., Tarboro.

Love and greetings from Granville County Alumni Association to Alma Mater on her 128th birthday.—Jas. W. Horner, president, Oxford.

Greetings to Alma Mater on her hundred and twenty-eighth birthday.—J. V. Whitfield, Havana, Cuba.

Greetings and all good wishes to Alma Mater from Greensboro alumni.—C. R. Wharton.

Best wishes for continued welfare of the University.—Chas. Baskerville, New York City.

The members of '21 in Greensboro send greetings.—C. W. Phillips, W. L. Blythe, A. L. Parrington, C. T. Leonard.

Plans for the Carolina-Virginia Football Game

TIME AND PLACE

This year's annual football game between the University of North Carolina and the University of Virginia will be played on Thanksgiving Day, November 24, on Emerson Field, Chapel Hill. It will begin at two o'clock.

TICKETS

Reserved seats are sold at $2 each. Application blanks, which have been mailed to all the alumni on the University's list, should be returned, when filled out, to Charles T. Woollen, graduate manager, accompanied by checks payable to the University Athletic Association. Applications will be filled in the order in which they are received.

SEATING ARRANGEMENTS

The concrete stands on Emerson Field seat 2,500. The temporary wooden stands will seat 3,000. There will be standing room in the space behind the west goal.

One section of the concrete stand is reserved for trustees and for the Governor and his staff, and another for former Varsity athletes. The latter, in ordering tickets, should state on what team they played. Their applications for seats in the special section should be received not later than November 15.

AUTOMOBILES

The new hard-surface road from Durham is sure to be open by Thanksgiving Day, except for two bridges near the Chapel Hill end. Whether these will be completed in time for the game is yet in doubt. But, even if they are not, there will be temporary wooden bridges to afford a safe passage. In Chapel Hill ample provision for parking will be made.

SPECIAL TRAINS

It is planned to run special trains from a number of cities. The railway ticket agent in each city will be able to give information about this.

FOOD

A buffet luncheon will be served at Swain Hall from 12 to 1:30 P.M. The fraternities will entertain their alumni and friends of their alumni.

REST ROOMS FOR LADIES

Rest rooms for ladies will be fitted out in the Peabody building. No provision for sleeping accommodations will be made. The University and the village are already overcrowded.

POLICE

Police from Raleigh, Greensboro and Durham will be in service at Chapel Hill for the day, to help handle the crowds and preserve order.

OFFICIALS

The Referee will be Paul P. Magoffin, of Michigan, and the Umpire E. J. Donnelly, of Trinity.

METHODISTS AND BAPTISTS GET CHURCH PLANS UNDER WAY

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the Trustees on September 23rd, an exchange of properties was effected between the University and the Methodist Church whereby the University secures the southern portion of the present Methodist Church lot for the exchange of frontage on Franklin Street out of the Seaton M. Barbee property which the University has recently acquired. The purpose of the exchange is to make possible a suitable building for the prospective new Methodist Church, and at the same time afford ample protection to the University properties.

It is the intention of the church to proceed at once to the drafting of plans with a view to starting the building by June of next year. The program as contemplated calls for the raising of $20,000 by the local Methodist Church, contributions from the Church Extension Funds of the North Carolina and Western North Carolina conferences of $60,000, and a contribution of $20,000 from the General Church Extension Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. In addition to that, the local church and the two conferences concerned are to raise $50,000 through popular subscription among the Methodists and friends of the church within and without the State.

The new building will be of double unit type, one unit serving for auditorium and church purposes, and the other for social and instructional purposes. This development is in line with the plan that is being carried out in a number of states where conferences are placing at state universities institutional churches adequate to serve the religious needs of the student body and the university community.

In a similar way the North Carolina Baptist State Convention is projecting a fine institutional church on a newly acquired lot on the west side of Columbia Street on the site of the old Roberson Hotel. Rev. Charles E. Maddy, Secretary of the State Convention, has recently had plans drawn by

H. L. Cain, of Richmond, and the building will be gotten under way during the first half of 1922. The plans call for a splendid auditorium, numerous Sunday school and instructional rooms, together with adequate facilities for the social entertainment of the students and townspeople.

COLGATE'S "HANDY GRIP" The Refill Shaving Stick

*There's no comparison—
In hot water or cold;
In hard water or soft.*

FOR that luxurious moist lather that means an easy shave—there's nothing like Colgate's Shaving Stick, and in the "Handy Grip" there's nothing like it for Convenience and Economy. Putting a Colgate "Refill" into the "Handy Grip" is easy and simple—just a couple of turns, and it is screwed in firmly. The soap itself is threaded. There is no waste.

Colgate's Shaving Stick not only produces the most soothing lather for the average man but it is a little more economical than cream. As we make all three, we can give you this impartial advice.

COLGATE & CO.
Dept. 212
199 Fulton Street, New York

The metal "Handy Grip" containing a trial size stick of Colgate's Shaving Soap, sent for 10c. When the trial stick is used up, you can buy the Colgate "Refills," threaded to fit this Grip. There are 350 shaves in a Colgate Shaving Stick—double the number you can get from a tube of cream at the same price.

Do You Feel the Old, Old Longing?

To do something to show your appreciation of Alma Mater and help her in her great work for the youth of the nation? If so

SEND YOUR CHECK TO THE ALUMNI LOYALTY FUND

And do at least one of the following important things:

1. Put the News Letter, the President's report, the Tar Heel, The Review, the Extension Bulletin—one or all—in the school or town library and hand copies of them to the local editor.
2. Tell the teachers and club women and others interested in special study to send their names to the Director of Extension for information concerning correspondence courses and club study programs.
3. Have you made your will? If you have not, make it and put Carolina in. If you have, and failed to include Carolina, add a codicil for her benefit.
4. Take out an insurance policy, preferably on the endowment plan, for $1000 to $5000 with the Alumni Loyalty Fund as beneficiary.
5. Endow one, two, or five fellowships in subjects of your choice with which the best men can be held in the Graduate School.
6. Establish one, two, or five scholarships for students who cannot otherwise go to college.
7. Endow any one of the fourteen unendowed sections of the library. Or give a lump sum for the immediate purchase of books.

Tear this off and mail it to J. A. Warren, Treasurer.

Announcement

The volume of business during the past three months has been the largest by far during our entire business experience. Our orders have come from several States, some of the largest from Virginia, Tennessee, South Carolina, Georgia and Florida.

The second edition of our MANUAL OF SCHOOL EQUIPMENT for 1921-22 is on the press and our revised Price List is ready for distribution.

We shall be glad to hear from you if interested in up-to-date school furniture.
